Summer is Almost Here... By Amber Rodriguez

Summer time is a magical time for many people. School is out, vacations are scheduled and the long days are filled with family, friends and fun. The last thing you may want to think about is your estate plan, but this may actually be the best time to review any plans you have in place or to create a plan if you do not already have one.

Whether you are leaving the state, leaving the country, or just leaving the office behind for a few days, time away often reminds us of how important it is to keep our affairs in order. This includes your personal affairs. You may not want to think about it in the midst of all the summer fun, but what if something were to happen to you? Do you have a plan in place that allows someone to care for your financial affairs if you are unable to do so yourself? Have you thought about who you would want to make health care decisions for you or to care for your children, if you could no longer do these things yourself? These are difficult things to think about, but probably some of the most important decisions we may make in our lives.

If you are ready to review your current estate plan, or want to get a complete plan in place, contact our office. We can help you decide what plan would work best for you and your family. With your estate plan back in order, you can truly relax and enjoy all of the summer time fun.
